

The police do care

HOW CAN WE express our admiration and appreciation to our fine men in blue, the policemen? During our recent bad snowstorm my husband, who is totally blind and runs a coffee shop in the city building, was determined he was going to work on the 6:30 a.m. bus. I was worried for his safety and called the police and asked if they would check to see if he got to the bus stop without incident.

I was told they would check on him immediately. They also asked me to call them immediately if I heard that he had gotten to work safely. Shortly, the phone rang. They said they had found my husband at the bus stop and they were taking him to work in the cruiser. What a relief! May God bless our policemen.
